Every single one of our readers seemed to have an opinion on our recent Jennifer Lopez cover for Shades of Blue

[January 4]. Timothy Breth thought it was “the hottest cover ever for TV GUIDE MAGAZINE and easily the best one” we’ve ever done. Lisa Henrich agreed, writing that J.Lo “looks absolutely fantastic”—though the shot left Linda Wells wondering if we’d recently made a deal with Playboy. “Those photos are way over the top,” she noted. Dee Lynn Bonn was just perplexed. “She is representing the police drama Shades of Blue. No cop would dress this way!”...Tim Dean disagreed with our Jeer of Derek Shepherd’s death on Grey’s Anatomy, in which we wrote that the plot twist “had fans wondering if it isn’t time to put this ABC show out of its misery.” [The Year in Cheers & Jeers, December 21]. “[In fact,] the show continues to flourish,” Dean wrote. “The only thing that should be put out of its misery is the repetitive prediction that the show has reached its end.”

TV's Obsession With Murder

Docuseries Making a Murderer has viewers hooked and clamoring for more true crime

Can television help to exonerate a convicted killer? Netflix's Making a Murderer has struck a chord, even provoking more than 100,000 people to petition the White House to look into the case of convicted felon Steven Avery.

Over the span of 10 years, filmmakers Laura Ricciardi and Moira Demos shot 700 hours of footage documenting the plight of Avery, a Wisconsin man who spent 18 years in prison for a wrongful conviction. After his release, he was later accused and convicted of murdering photographer Teresa Halbach.

"When we started this, we thought we were making a documentary feature," says Ricciardi, who began shooting Murderer in 2005 after Avery was arrested for Halbach's death. The project grew as new twists emerged, including the alleged confession by Avery's nephew Brendan Dassey to the crime.

"That really changed things for us, because it became clear that this was not going to fit into a traditional format," Ricciardi says. "One of the hardest things about making this was being firm that in order to tell the story right, it needed to be told in long-form. People floated the idea of a two-hour slot or maybe a four-part series. But that was going to require trimming most of the story. “

Ricciardi and Demos shopped Murderer as a series to networks like Investigation Discovery in 2013, but despite having aired a one-hour episode about Avery’s case, network executives didn’t think it merited more than that.

The duo then turned to Netflix, which was just starting to buy documentaries. “Streaming opens up a whole new avenue for storytelling,” Demos says, citing the freedom to make as many episodes as needed to tell the story. With Netflix on-board, Ricciardi and Demos quit their other jobs and focused fully on Murderer. They were shaping certain episodes up until the December 18 premiere.

“It was the perfect combination of superaddictive viewing and [it was available during] the holiday break, when people had time to get hooked on it and tell their friends,” Netflix Chief Content Officer Ted Sarandos says of the 10-episode series’ immediate success and buzz. “The trajectory was like something we’d never seen before. When you’re watching it, you go through every stage of emotion. A lot of people were watching thinking, ‘That kind of thing could happen to me, to my kids.’”

Making a Murderer also lands in the pop-culture zeitgeist as true crime has gone highbrow. The public-radio podcast Serial and HBO’s docuseries The Jinx earned high marks for turning unresolved and highly debated cases into multipart series. “It’s the one genre that guarantees you high stakes—often life and death,” says Henry Schleiff, the group president of Investigation Discovery, Destination America and American Heroes Channel. “Those are the stories we’re telling. [The Jinx, Serial and Making a Murderer] bring a huge klieg light to the genre, and the attention that brings is great for us.”

Investigation Discovery also couldn’t resist jumping back into the Avery fray and partnered with NBC’s Peacock Productions to quickly produce Front Page: The Steven Avery Story, which is set to air this month. “As the country’s most experienced true-crime network, we feel compelled to address some critical details missing from the case as presented in the Netflix documentary,” Schleiff told reporters at the Television Critics Association press tour in Los Angeles.

HLN host Nancy Grace has also taken shots at Making a Murderer, bringing on prosecutor Ken Kratz (whose questionable actions in the Avery case are spotlighted in the series) to trash the documentary, accusing it of leaving out some facts. “I believe with all my heart that Halbach was murdered by Avery,” Grace says. “At the get-go, maybe the producers didn’t know this wasn’t fair and balanced. But they do now, unless they have their heads in the sand.”

Counters Demos: “The journalists who are giving these people a platform and allowing them to say what they’re saying should understand that if you just checked the public record, these individuals will essentially discredit themselves. Fact-check what [Kratz is] saying.”

Sarandos welcomes the criticism because it “brings a lot more attention to the project, which means more people will watch it and decide for themselves.” Murderer has already been parodied on Late Night With Seth Meyers and has inspired the song “Lake Superior” by Black Keys frontman Dan Auerbach’s new band, the Arcs. “If you’re being spoofed on late-night TV within days of release, you know people are seeing your show,” Sarandos says about how it’s performing. (Netflix isn’t required to release its streaming figures.)

And on January 7, the White House finally commented on the petition: “Since Steven Avery and Brendan Dassey are both state prisoners, the president cannot pardon them. A pardon in this case would need to be issued at the state level by the appropriate authorities.”

Will there be a sequel to Making a Murderer? “It’s too early to say,” Ricciardi says. “We’re just trying to be a part of the dialogue. We’ll continue to follow this case if there are developments. Hopefully, we’ll have a break to think next steps.”

2016 Viewing Resolutions

BY MICHAEL FELL

Every January, tech companies from around the globe gather in Las Vegas for the Consumer Electronics Show (CES), hoping to convince buyers that we need bigger TVs, better headphones and faster computers. Here are some new gadgets for viewing at home, at work and even on the road.

Volvo Concept 26

Being taken for a ride can be a good thing. Volvo's future driverless car has a Relax mode: The passenger seat reclines and a streaming-capable screen pops up from the dashboard. No word on when the car will come to market. (volvocars.com)

Vuzix iWear Wireless

It's a home theater on your face! Vuzix's mobile video headphones (which won an Innovation Award for design and engineering at CES) has a hi-def display that is the equivalent of watching a 125-inch screen from a distance of 10 feet. ($499, vuzix.com)

Lenovo Yoga Tab 3 Pro

How much time have you spent at meetings just trying to hook up a laptop with a projector? This tablet has a built-in projector that throws a 70-inch image. Preferably of a Jessica Jones episode instead of a spreadsheet. ($475, lenovo.com)

LG OLED G6

The organic light-emitting diode screen already sports the most impressive hi-def picture. Now it comes with HDR (high dynamic range), which improves contrast and color. LG's model is insanely thin: less than one-tenth of an inch. The TV, which doesn't yet have a set price, is expected to be available this spring. (lg.com)

HP Envy Curved All-in-One

This Hewlett-Packard PC continues to blur the line between computer and television. The wide, 34-inch screen feels as big as a TV, and its Technicolor-certified picture is complemented by six Bang & Olufsen speakers. ($1,750, store.hp.com)

Join or Die Ferguson's New Show

More than a year after leaving CBS's The Late Late Show, Craig Ferguson says his new History series, Join or Die, satisfies his talk-show itch. "I wanted to do something that had a little more heft," he says. "Content that grabbed you, that was interesting to me in a discussion format as opposed to asking, 'Hi, where are you from? How long have you known George Clooney?'"

Join or Die (premiering Thursday, February 18, 11/10c) follows a panel of celebrities and experts riffing on various topics from history, such as "most influential drug" and "biggest gangster in history."

Ferguson has already taped 20 episodes and would like to do more. "There are a lot of areas where it can go," he says. "I just don't want to make 220 shows a year anymore. Unless there's some kind of talk-show Viagra, I don't want to do it every day."

As for his Late Late Show successor, Ferguson gives James Corden high marks. "He's a sweet guy. He's very charming. He's a very smart performer and he's doing exactly what he needs to do, which is find the show that's his, not mine, not Craig Kilborn's, and not Tom Snyder's." —Michael Schneider

A New Direction for TNT and TBS

KEVIN REILLY IS giving himself three years to reinvent TBS and TNT. He joined the networks as chief creative officer in late 2014 and spent much of last year quietly making changes. Gone are most blue-sky procedurals like TNT's Rizzoli & Isles (its run ends this summer) and comedies like TBS's Ground Floor. New slates include dramas Good Behavior, starring Michelle Dockery, and Animal Kingdom, with Ellen Barkin, at TNT; and comedies including TBS's People of Earth, from Conan O'Brien's company. Reilly shares what else is on tap. —MS

You have said that Time Warner is investing in your networks. Where is the money going? When you look at the amount of hours [TNT programs], we have outpaced the competitors for years. Not on TBS. That's where a lot of the increase in spending will go initially.

*Animal

Why the move toward more upscale, serialized drama? Why can't you stick with procedurals? It's hard because there is an audience for that kind of fare. I can't tell you how many women between the ages of 60 and 75 have grabbed my wrist and said, 'You're not going to change my network, are you?' I'd like to hold on to those viewers, and I think a show like Good Behavior will hang on to a chunk of women viewers in particular. TNT had already veered outside its traditional audience with male-oriented shows The Last Ship and Falling Skies. And did pretty well. Those are a little outside the box, and we will continue in the genre. But if you go half-in and make just slightly edgy versions, you're now making a show for nobody. You're promising fewer ads and more content in your new shows. How will that work? For advertisers, it means a deeper involvement with the show, almost going back to having an exclusive sponsor. When you put more content in a show, viewing time goes up. If viewing time goes up, ratings go up.

Rob Lowe Strips Down for The Grinder

Life's a beach for Dean Sanderson (Rob Lowe)! In the January 19 episode of Fox's The Grinder, the clip from Dean's legal procedural finds his character, Mitch Grinder, on the shores of Nicaragua. After Mitch is betrayed by his mentor, Gordon Stutz (Richard Schiff, above left), the two attorneys face off in a remote fishing village (Mitch also found time to fit in some yoga). "A gun is pulled, a fish is thrown, but who will prevail?" asks Lowe, who was excited to share the screen again with his West Wing costar. "We've been to the mountaintop together and in the trenches. It was a fun change to reunite for an out-and-out comedy." —Rob Moynihan

How I Got My SAG-AFTRA Card

EVEN HOLLYWOOD'S MOST celebrated stars have to pay their dues. Nominees for the 22nd annual Screen Actors Guild Awards (Sunday, January 30, 8/7c, TNT and TBS) reveal the gigs that granted them union membership. —Rob Moynihan

"I got my AFTRA card when I was 7 years old. I did a couple of those fake commercials for Saturday Night Live. At the time, there was a whole thing about medical waste being dumped in one of the rivers on the East Coast. My vignette was kids at a birthday party breaking open a piñata that was actually a cast and then playing in the used medical waste that fell out. Apparently I was really good at it, because I got featured!" —Christina Ricci (Outstanding Actress in a TV Movie or Miniseries, The Lizzie Borden Chronicles)

"I officially got my SAG card on Over There, a Steven Bochco war series for FX. But I was Taft-Hartley-ed [a federal labor law precursor to becoming a SAG-AFTRA member] for Gilmore Girls. I think I had two lines."

—Rami Malek (Outstanding Actor in a Drama, Mr. Robot)

"I earned my SAG card doing a commercial for Kmart for a one-week sale on tents. I was camping with my on-screen husband, and there was a tarantula crawling across my face. Weirdly, I felt overwhelmingly calm while filming this. I guess you could say I had tarantula Zen. Maybe it was the knowledge that I was earning my SAG card. For whatever reason, it was an excellent experience."

—Ellie Kemper (Outstanding Actress in a Comedy, Unbreakable Kimmy Schmidt)

"I got my SAG card in 2002 for a pilot called With You in Spirit. I remember thinking that the money from the pilot was a fortune. It wasn't. After renting a car to get around L.A., paying off some debt and maybe buying a new pair of shoes, I was broke. I had to borrow money from my father just to join SAG."

—Reid Scott (Outstanding Performance by an Ensemble in a Comedy, Veep)

"I got my SAG card doing a voice-over for a Tampax commercial where I echoed the voice of an on-camera actress with just one word: ballet. I made $10,000 in residuals. I never saw money like that in my life and it didn't even matter what I looked like! I was hooked on [voice-over] from then on!"

Double Trouble

Birds of a feather fight together on the 1970s-set January 28 episode of The CW's DC's Legends of Tomorrow, as Hawkman (Falk Hentschel) and Hawkgirl (Ciara Renée) come face-to-face with immortal enemy Vandal Savage (Casper Crump). "This a--hole has been killing them for 4,000 years," executive producer Phil Klemmer says of the oft-reincarnated couple's gripe. "And so they would like to have things end differently this time." —Damian Holbrook

Isles Is All Locked Up

When TNT's Rizzoli & Isles returns February 16, Jane (Angie Harmon) learns that Maura (Sasha Alexander, pictured) was kidnapped after being attacked in September's mid-season finale. "Maura is in danger," says executive producer Jan Nash. "Being the smart medical examiner that she is, she's going to do everything she can to protect herself." Though Maura won't be missing for too long—BFF Jane is, of course, on the case to find her—the abduction, Nash says, is part of a story that will carry the team into the next (and final) season. —Marisa Roffman

Lewis as the master of his billion-dollar universe

Billions

Money and machismo fuel this high-stakes clash of egos

Sundays, 10/9c, Showtime

My biggest problem with Billions is I'm not sure I'd give a plugged nickel for either of the arrogant creeps at the heartless heart of this slick and juicy high-finance melodrama, which pits a self-made hedge-fund billionaire against a ruthless U.S. Attorney in a bitter campaign of alpha-takes-all combat.

At least Bobby "Axe" Axelrod (Homeland's Damian Lewis) of the high-rolling Axe Capital has some charisma in his swagger, nurturing his "man of the people" image by wearing rock 'n' roll T-shirts at work and wolfing down White Castle burgers at his desk. Though he says he's never seen Citizen Kane, which becomes a subplot that begs unflattering comparisons, Axelrod has a mansion's worth of Rosebuds in his emotional baggage. His firm's sole 9/11 survivor, he holds serious grudges from his working-class days as a paperboy and caddy and relishes the opportunity to rub his victims' noses in his pay dirt.

But he's a pussycat compared to beetle-browed bulldog Chuck Rhoades (dyspeptic Paul Giamatti), a politically motivated U.S. Attorney whose 81–0 record at taking down financial miscreants faces its biggest challenge in his crusade against the popular Axelrod. And not just because his strong-willed wife, Wendy (Sons of Anarchy's Maggie Siff; see page 49), works at Axe as a "Dr. Mojo" corporate shrink who pumps up the over-stressed traders by convincing them they're all winners.

She knows better. And knowing both adversaries so well, she rightly sees their conflict as an unnecessary war of egos that puts her in the uncomfortable middle. Wendy only has so much control over her husband—except when she's playing dominatrix in their private sex games. There's nothing subtle about Billions, which wallows in kink and filthy language just because it can. And when she tries to keep her boss from buying a $63 million beach house because of the optics that will make him look like "just another rich a--hole," guess what happens.

The twists get wilder as the stakes get higher, leading to a memorable showdown in the sixth episode. Consider Billions a lesser substitute while we wait till summer for the next season of the even more pugnacious Ray Donovan. ★★★☆☆

May (who directs this tribute) and Nichols in their comedic prime

Mike Nichols: American Masters

Friday, Jan. 29, 9/8c, PBS (check local listings at pbs.org)

Waiting until the very end of her hourlong love letter to her former partner in improvisational comedy, director Elaine May declares of Mike Nichols's career, "His best work is about who we were at the end of the 20th century and who we were about to become." Just a partial list of his directing credits—the original Broadway productions of Neil Simon's Barefoot in the Park and The Odd Couple, the Oscar-winning The Graduate and Who's Afraid of Virginia Woolf?, HBO's Angels in America miniseries—provides staggering evidence for May's claim. Not that Nichols himself, who died in November 2014 at 83, would ever have made such grandiose claims.

He projects a self-effacingly modest charm in an extended exclusive interview (with producer Julian Schlossberg) that provides the bulk and backbone of this otherwise glancing tribute, kicking off the 30th season of American Masters.

We get a glimpse of the Nichols and May magic at the 1959 Emmys, when she presented a mock award to "the most total mediocrity in the industry" (a beaming, youthful Nichols). The real draw of this special isn't in the clips or celebrity testimonials but in the chance to admire Nichols's wit and intelligence as he recalls his education and evolution as an artist who loved other artists who loved him back. (He chokes up in awe when discussing his frequent muse, Meryl Streep, who deserves her own Masters salute.) ★★☆☆☆

Whishaw

London Spy

Miniseries premiere Thursday, Jan. 21, 10/9c, BBC America

A TRAGIC LOVE story masquerading as a spy thriller, Tom Rob Smith's wildly original five-part London Spy is an emotional tour de force for rising star Ben Whishaw as Danny, a romantically wishful and boyish drifter who falls for strong, silent and brilliant investment banker Alex (Edward Holcroft)—maybe not his name, definitely not his profession.

The drama quickly becomes a surreal mystery of identity and a poignant, pungent study of lives lived in the shadows: those of spies as well as homosexuals, including Danny's mentor-protector, the former agent Scottie (a moving Jim Broadbent). As the resolute Danny descends into a rabbit hole of deception and paranoia, where almost no one is who they seem, we begin to fear learning the answers. ★★☆☆☆

Radnor

Mercy Street

Sundays, 10/9c, PBS (check local listings at pbs.org)

SET IN AN 1862 Civil War hotel turned hospital in the melting pot of Alexandria, Virginia, the handsomely produced Mercy Street is a rare and noble effort to supplement all those PBS British imports with a dose of homegrown American drama. A shame that it quickly reveals itself to be a fiddle-dee-disappointment.

This contrived Gone With the ER, headlined by Josh Radnor as a morphine-addicted surgeon (shades of The Knick) and Mary Elizabeth Winstead as a rigid widowed nurse who'd rather not treat Confederate patients, is museum-piece stiff in its characterizations of heroes and villains, Yankees and Rebs, and "contraband" freed African-Americans noble in posture but lacking in nuance. It's stubbornly bland, except in moments of primitive triage so graphic you may beg for mercy. ★★☆☆☆

SCREEN ACTORS GUILD AWARDS Saturday, Jan. 30, 8/7c, TNT and TBS

THERE WILL BE lots of love in the room when 82-year-old comedy legend Carol Burnett gets the Life Achievement trophy at the 22nd annual Screen Actors Guild Awards. But she'll be the one in awe.

What will you be thinking as you walk to that SAG stage?

I'll be 10 years old again! This award is quite terrific but so unnerving because I know I'll be looking out at a sea of fantastic movie stars. Back in the covered-wagon days, my grandmother and I were crazy about the movies—she got in for a quarter, I got in for a dime—and I was so inspired by the magic that I believed anything in life was possible. It's why I have a career. I really believed in Mickey and Judy. "Hey, kids, let's put on a show!" I'm a little-screen performer who's a big-screen nut.

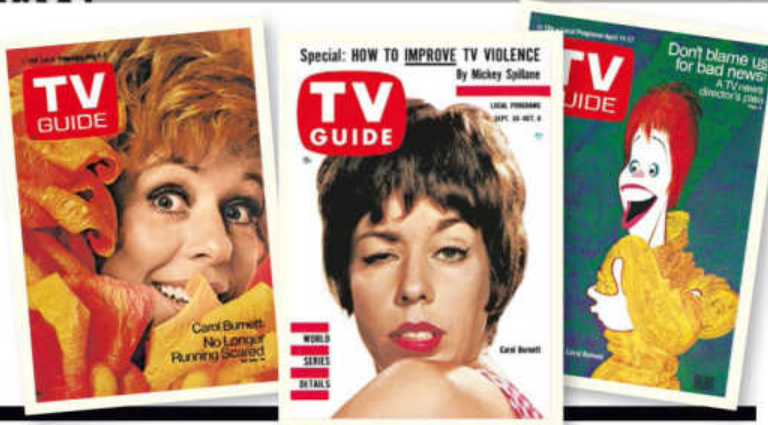

But you've made many successful movies. Even superstar directors John Huston and Robert Altman hired you! I was never comfortable in front a movie camera. In fact, I think I was kind of uptight. I was born to have a live audience. I need it. I respect it. That's why we taped The Carol Burnett Show like gangbusters, quickly changing sets and costumes and going from one sketch right into the next so the studio audience wouldn't get tired. You can't bore the people. You need their support and you sure as hell need their laughs.

Any regrets in a career that seems to have gone perfectly?

None. [Laughs] But I'm glad I'm as old as I am! I wouldn't have the success—or the fun—I've had if I was just starting out now. I don't think uniqueness is prized the way it used to be. I'm always getting letters from young people who say, "I want to be the next Carol Burnett." That's no way to make your mark in this world. I write back to those kids and say, "Don't be a second anything. Be the first you!"

Guide-ing Light

CAROL BURNETT HAS made TV GUIDE MAGAZINE's cover 19 times, including in 1961, when she was voted Favorite Female Performer against insane competition: Barbara Stanwyck, Dinah Shore, Donna Reed and Loretta Young! Burnett was so sure she'd lose she came to the awards telecast in a $20 skirt and blouse, then wandered off before her category was announced. "It was my first award, and winning it meant the world to me," she recalls. "It's still proudly displayed in my den. And I'm still in shock!"

GREAT X-PECTATIONS

Mulder and Scully are back on the case for a reboot of the beloved sci-fi series The X-Files

BY MICHAEL SCHNEIDER

DAVID DUCHOVNY IS clad in the classic FBI G-man outfit: government-issue blue shirt with a short red tie. Sitting behind a large metal desk, he leans forward, picks up a pile of pencils and, one by one, starts throwing them at a familiar poster. You know the one.

Bankers' boxes stuffed with folders marked "X-Files" line the wall. Slapped on a small door is a nameplate designating this the office of Fox Mulder. After a few throws, one of Duchovny's pencils sticks, right above the words I WANT TO BELIEVE. He points to it proudly. Soon, he's making the shot consistently: "I can go pro," he jokes.

Anything is possible, including the return of The X-Files, shooting six new episodes to premiere on Fox following the NFL's NFC championship game on Sunday, January 24.

On a breezy July day, in an abandoned mental hospital just outside of Vancouver, Duchovny (Mulder) and Gillian Anderson (Dana Scully) have been transported back to the basement of the FBI headquarters in Washington, D.C.

A lot has happened in the 22 years since Mulder the truther and Scully the skeptic first paired up to investigate unexplainable paranormal phenomena. For one thing, an older and wiser Mulder is wrestling with the kind of doubt that comes with having seen everything yet still having no answers.

"I'm a middle-aged man," he tells Scully while tossing out X-Files cases that have since been revealed as publicity stunts, frat pranks and practical jokes. "And I'm finding it hard to maintain the enthusiasm of my youth. Is this really how I want to spend my life, chasing monsters?"

Cue the chorus of several million X-Files fans, all screaming in unison, "Yes!"

The X-Files, which aired from 1993 to 2002, had been dormant ever since the second film, released in 2008, was met with lukewarm response. Creator Chris Carter, who spent much of the last decade exploring other pursuits (including a fellowship at the Kavli Institute for Theoretical Physics at the University of California at Santa Barbara), wrote a third movie—which has yet to see the light of day.

"It wasn't as if I let those characters go for eight years," he says. "I was noodling. Every time I open up the newspaper, I see a new X-Files story. I've been doing it for so long, it's a part of my thought process."

But after the last movie disappointed, 20th Century Fox's film studio wasn't interested in another X-Files installment. "We thought it was probably over," says Duchovny. "That was disappointing. However dark The X-Files got, there was always a tone of wonder and hopefulness, in a way that I think the last movie lost hold of. It was merely dark. If you wanted to end The X-Files, that was not the way to end it."

Anderson agrees: "It wasn't the right way to go out. It would be nice if there were some kind of closure."

The idea of bringing The X-Files back wasn't on their minds when Duchovny, Anderson, Carter and many of the producers gathered on stage in 2013 at a standing-room-only Comic-Con panel organized by TV GUIDE MAGAZINE. Yet it was there that the seeds were planted.

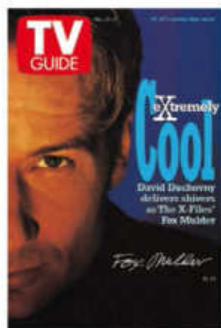

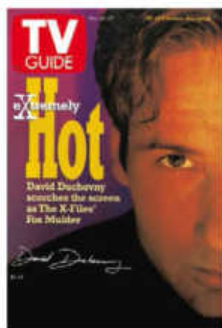

"We had lunch with Chris, maybe in September or October after that panel," says Fox Television Group chairman Dana Walden. "I think after Comic-Con he realized that the appetite is as great as ever. We broached the idea of doing an event series."

The stars were game once they realized Fox wasn't asking for many episodes. "Both of us were like, 'There's no way we're going to do [13],'" Duchovny says.

Still, Carter was busy with his Amazon Prime Video show The After (which was later scrapped), while Anderson and Duchovny were starring on other TV shows.

"We were probably in the planning stage for about a year before everyone got on the same page," Walden says. "Gillian lives in the U.K., David lives in New York and Los Angeles and Chris is here in L.A. It was hard finding a window that they could all be together in the same city. Putting all the pieces together was just so challenging. Not until we had a signed deal did I feel 100 percent certain that this was a reality."

Carter decided to write and direct three of the six episodes and brought on X-Files vets Glen Morgan, Jim Wong and Darin Morgan to write and direct one each. "There's a little bit of excitement, some trepidation and some nervousness," Darin Morgan says. "It's hard to know what the reaction is going to be."

TRUTH SEEKING

Eager to do a little homework before diving into the new episodes of The X-Files? We asked creator Chris Carter for some clues on what to bone up on, as well as a few things that he says inspired this season.

—MS

EDWARD SNOWDEN The computer expert and former National Security Agency subcontractor, currently exiled in Russia, leaked top-secret documents that revealed the U.S.'s global surveillance of Internet and phone data. "When we went off the air in 2002, we had almost absolute trust in our government and our representatives to protect us," Carter says. "So many of those powers that we gave them have been abused. The shocking thing to me is how little outcry there is when we find out that they're spying on us. I think it's because millennials freely give up their privacy online now, thinking nothing bad is ever going to happen."

MYCELIUM RUNNING The Paul Stamets book, subtitled "How Mushrooms Can Save the World," looks at how certain fungi could be bred to decompose toxic waste, stop viruses and protect humans from nerve gas.

JOEL MCHALE'S 2014 WHITE HOUSE CORRESPONDENTS' DINNER SPEECH "I saw him do that and I thought, 'This is the guy,'"

Carter says. "He was great and fearless. He was an easy cast."

CRISPR-CAS9 This new genetic technique enables DNA to be easily edited. Those tweaks would then be inherited by the person's offspring, making permanent changes to the human gene pool and potentially altering the nature of humans. In December, a group of scientists called for a moratorium on proceeding with such changes.

MY STRUGGLE Norwegian author Karl Ove Knausgaard made waves in his native country by examining every sordid detail of his family's life in a six-book series.

THRIVE MOVEMENT Led by Foster Gamble, this conspiracy site (and movie) pushes for smaller government. It's a hub that Mulder might frequent, one of many conspiracy sites that Carter researched for the show. "You read them, and every one of them have elements of what I feel are sort of credible theories," he says. "There's a lot of stuff I just discount out of hand, but I'm a skeptic by nature."

NEW PSYCHEDELIC DRUG RESEARCH According to The New Yorker, "a renaissance of psychedelic research [is] taking place at several universities in the United States.... Scientists are eager to reconsider the therapeutic potential of these drugs, beginning with psilocybin," which is being used in clinical trials to treat alcohol addiction.

FREE ENERGY A term used in the premiere, and relevant to the show's mythology. Many people believe that a power source exists that can generate low-cost electricity, ending the need for fossil fuels. But conspiracy theorists suggest that the technology is being suppressed.

Ultimately, Carter decided to put a new twist on the show's alien-invasion mythology. What if it was the government, and not an alien life-form, that was behind some of the world's biggest unexplained events? "My feeling was this had to follow perfectly from where the original series left off, but it didn't necessarily have to take everything as gospel that had come before," he says.

Community's Joel McHale stars in the first episode as Tad O'Malley, a Glenn Beck-like TV host who traffics in conspiracy—and is a fan of Mulder's work. "He believes everything Mulder has said, and all those theories, but has made millions of dollars off of it," says McHale, a longtime fan of the franchise. "It's one of the most original science-fiction ideas that I have ever read. There's no rehash here."

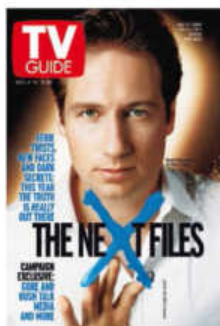

It's O'Malley who helps trigger a reopening of the X-Files—and a reunion between Mulder and Scully. Indeed, the couple, last seen at the end of the 2008 movie heading into the sunset, have split up in the interim.

But take a deep breath: Duchovny believes Mulder and Scully will eventually get back together. "I think Chris likes to give the fans what they want," he says. "Personally, I'm way more miserly. I'd be like, 'Eff you guys, they're staying apart.' That's why I don't have any friends."

Plenty of other surprises are in store, including the resurrection of the sinister Cigarette Smoking Man (William B. Davis), who was supposedly killed in the series finale. Hints Carter: "In Episode 6, you're going to see exactly what the product of that failure to die was."

Also back from the "dead" is conspiracy trio the Lone Gunmen (Tom Braidwood, Bruce Harwood and Dean Haglund). "You see them in an interesting way in Episode 5," Carter teases.

FBI Assistant Director Walter Skinner (Mitch Pileggi) will once again be keeping an eye on Mulder and Scully. Other returning players are FBI Special Agent Monica Reyes (Annabeth Gish, who joined the series in Season 8) and Margaret Scully, Dana’s mother (Sheila Larkin). “I felt that there were certain command performances that you had to meet,” Carter says.

—Executive Producer Chris Carter

Besides McHale, guest stars this time include Rhys Darby (Flight of the Conchords), Robbie Amell (The Flash), Lauren Ambrose (Six Feet Under) and Kumail Nanjiani (Silicon Valley), who’s such a fan he even hosts a regular podcast about The X-Files. Annet Mahendru (The Americans) shows up in the first episode as Sveta, an abductee who may be the key to uncovering the truth—it’s men, not aliens, she says, who have taken her.

Carter split the six-episode order into two conspiracy episodes (the premiere and finale) book-ending four so-called “monster of the week” episodes. Darin Morgan, known for some of The X-Files’ most irreverent episodes (including the Emmy-winning “Clyde Bruckman’s Final Repose”), brushed off an old classic monster-movie concept of his to pen the third installment, “Mulder and Scully Meet the Were-Monster.” “There are quite a lot of nods that longtime fans will get,” he says. It’s this episode where Mulder faces a bit of a midlife crisis. “Mulder’s at that stage where he’s back, but he’s not sure if it’s really all worthwhile,” he adds. “Hopefully by the end of the episode that fire has been reignited in him.”

Back on set, Darin Morgan is directing a classic Mulder-Scully back-and-forth as the characters dissect a corpse. Suddenly a cell phone rings, ruining the shot. It’s coming from the pants pocket of the actor playing the stiff. As if he were answering the phone, Duchovny quips, “Dead man’s ass!”

Mahendru

The stars are clearly enjoying this revisit. “The most fun part,” Duchovny says later, “is just doing this thing again that we do. There weren’t really any missed beats. It’s just a weird thing we can fall into.”

Carter hopes the hard-core fans are satisfied, and since much is left unresolved at the end of Episode 6, another miniseries is possible. “I initially had an expectation that six would be it,” Anderson says. “I had no interest in doing any more. I’m a bit more open to the idea.”

Adds Duchovny: “We acknowledge the place the show has in our lives and our careers. It’s a cornerstone. But it can’t ever be the centerpiece of our lives again. If we can figure out a way to do it [as an occasional event], then I think I’d like that.”

Life in Pieces' James Brolin on his famous family and why he finally decided to do a sitcom NEARLY 50 YEARS ago, a young James Brolin left a studio film contract and decided to take a chance on television. That gamble, Marcus Welby, M.D., made him a star, earning him an Emmy and two Golden Globes. Now, with an admirable Hollywood career full of dramatic roles under his belt, he's returned to the medium to play sweet but spacey patriarch John Short on the CBS family comedy Life in Pieces. Between bites of branzino and sips of iced tea, the 75-year-old actor discussed his funny business.

With LIP costars Thomas Sadoski, Betsy Brandt and Colin Hanks; with Streisand and son Josh

Life in Pieces* has been one of the few true successes on network TV this season. Why do you think it's connecting with people? It deals with some really common, but more ridiculous, family problems. There's also the blue side of it. For a broadcast show, it's a bit daring. The fact is, in the first episode, I really objected to saying, "And my granddaughter just had her first period."

Where does your sense of humor come from? My dad was a daily-post-time drinker. When he got home from work and he started his evening, we kids never got a straight answer out of him. It was always a facetious answer. So we started our own facetious thing to deal with it and with each other. I've never really done anything on film that was funny. Yet I had an ex-manager who said, "You know, you're the new Cary Grant. You should be doing comedy movies." And I said, "Well, you're my agent, so..."

Have you been approached about doing a sitcom before? Well, there were three [offers] in the last two-and-a-half years, and they weren't funny.

What made Life in Pieces different? I don't understand a lot of the sitcoms [with] the embellished laugh tracks over [jokes] that literally are not funny. I'm constantly judging when I watch them. Reading this pilot, I was in stitches. When we started talking, [I needed to know] that there would be no audience or laugh track. I was reassured, "We can't put that in writing, but no, we guarantee there will never be any." I said, "Well, [if one is added,] I won't be able to show up to work, you know?" Kidding!

When the initial reviews for the show came out, some critics called it a Modern Family knock-off. I know. Why didn't they compare it to all of the other family shows way back? Why mention Modern Family, I wonder? Because it's the only thing on that you like right now? All we do that's the same is talk about family.

Let's get your stance on a few things your character loves. First and foremost: mai tais. That's based on my father. I went to Google Images to find pictures of pineapples and umbrellas. I had to print them out and bring them to the prop guys because they could not get it.

Would you ever go hot-tubbing while listening to Josh Groban? I would.

Watch Charlie Rose? Yeah, my wife [Barbra Streisand] and I love Charlie Rose.

John clearly believes in keeping a marriage passionate. Totally agree with that. We believe any marriages that are having any problem should bring in a really wonderful mediator, somebody who's an expert. Not in a long time now, actually, but we've called in a guy, just a great psychologist, who says, "She means this, and he means this. You guys are saying the same thing." And everything just goes poof—whatever problems you've been living with just go away.

Does your wife watch Life in Pieces with you? Absolutely.

Do you think she'd ever guest star? I think she'd be a wonderful director, and she may do that. It would be really interesting to me because she's so after the truth of situations, and I would be curious to see the difference between her and other directors. She says it's going to be funniest if it's really true. [After watching an episode,] I said, "What do you think?" and she says, "Ehhh, you're stretching a little bit there for comedy."

What about your son, Josh Brolin? Maybe he could play a long-lost son? He would never. He has a big film career. He hasn't done any television, and he's very, very serious. I mean, he studied so much harder and longer than I did for his career, and he's very adamant and very firm about his opinions all the way. Sometimes I'll hear he's going to be on Jimmy Kimmel, and I'll watch and find out about this picture I had no idea he did. I'll see him and everything, but he'll never tell me about any of this stuff!

If you could go back to your first day on the set of Marcus Welby, what would you tell yourself? I thought you weren't going to do television!

'50s SHADES

Fox's star-studded Grease: Live brings back the ultimate high school musical (Tell us more! Tell us more!)

BY ROB MOYNIHAN

On a warm mid-December afternoon in Burbank, the unmistakable strains of “whoa whoa whoa,” “doobie-do” and “ramma lamma lamma” echo through the hallways of a dance studio. “I find myself singing those ‘ramma lammass’ in my sleep,” whispers Kether Donohue (You’re the Worst), who plays bubbly Pink Lady Jan in Fox’s upcoming musical adaptation Grease: Live.

It’s only the third week of rehearsals, but it’s already apparent that the cast members go together like a-wop-bam-boom. During a run-through of the iconic penultimate number, “You’re the One That I Want,” pop singer Carly Rae Jepsen and Scream Queens’ Keke Palmer, who play fellow Pink Ladies Frenchy and Marty, respectively, challenge each other to a Hula-Hoop competition, while Donohue and costar David Del Rio (Putzie) improvise some very NSFW moves. At the center of the dance floor, the show’s two leads, Dancing With the Stars’ Julianne Hough and Broadway vet and Graceland star Aaron Tveit, collapse into fits of laughter as they work on perfecting the elaborate routine, which sends them flying through the studio on top of tables and bleachers.

Former Disney Channel star Vanessa Hudgens, who plays head Pink Lady and perennial bad girl Rizzo, agrees with her costar. “It’s six days a week, nine hours a day, consisting of scene work and choreography, so we're now at that point where we're starting to mesh it all together. But these are all genuinely good people who love their craft, so we all make each other better."

"These are big shoes to fill," says Hough (second from left, with Jepsen, Tveit and PenaVega), who met Newton-John (below, with Travolta in the 1978 film) when the Aussie guest judged Dancing With the Stars. "She gave me a blessing to pass the torch."

Under the direction of renowned Broadway helmer Thomas Kail (Hamilton), Grease: Live marks the next chapter in the growing trend of live musicals broadcast on network television. After the success of NBC's The Sound of Music Live!, which attracted over 18 million viewers in 2013, Fox purchased the rights to Grease from Paramount, which produced the classic 1978 film starring John Travolta and Olivia Newton-John, itself based on the 1971 musical. "Grease is rife for live television because it is full of joy, energy, music, dance and fun," says executive producer Marc Platt (Wicked). "It's so much a part of our culture—the film has been seen by generation after generation, so there's that nostalgia."

Set in the 1950s, Grease centers on the romance between good girl Sandy (Hough) and greaser Danny (Tveit). After the two engage in a summer fling, they meet again during their senior year at Rydell High and must balance their feelings while staying loyal to their cliques, the Pink Ladies and the T-Birds. Thanks to smash hit songs like "Summer Nights" and the Oscar-nominated "Hopelessly Devoted to You," Grease remains the highest-grossing movie musical in U.S. history. "Our version is taking the spine of the film and grabbing stuff from the stage play that we thought could enhance the experience," Kail says, adding that original songs will be weaved in. Ana Gasteyer and Mario Lopez will also appear, while '90s R&B group Boyz II Men will cameo for "Beauty School Dropout." "This is an opportunity to keep the focus on the love story but also build out and honor some of the ensemble work that the stage play had featured."

Grease: Live will be the first of the network television musical events to feature a live studio audience. Instead of being a passive viewer to the action, the crowd will be integrated into the sets—such as the bleachers in the school gym or the crowd at the year-end carnival—to be a more active element of the production. "I feel like the life just gets sucked out of the room when there's no audience," Hough says. "Our whole life as performers is based off of connecting with people, so to have a connection with a live audience means we're performing for them, not just for a camera."

On the big night, Grease: Live will broadcast from the Warner Bros. lot in Burbank and take up two stages and an outdoor space. Golf carts will be used to transport the actors to and from scenes, and they will all be outfitted with portable GoPro cameras, with viewers able to follow the behind-the-scenes high jinks. "We're literally going to be running and changing and breathing and Instagramming and Vining all at the same time," Hough says. "What world do we live in?!"

Juggling aside, the company are well aware they have only one shot to continue the success of live musicals on network TV. "We're just trying to be a part of this landscape," says Kail, who gathered with the rest of the Grease: Live company and producers on December 3 to watch the latest successful NBC live musical, The Wiz. "We have a deep appreciation for how difficult this is, and we're here because of the effort of the people who have already made these things. Now you don't have to travel to New York or go to your local theater. Stay where you live, and let us come to you." And after Grease drives into the sunset, Fox will prep its second musical, The Rocky Horror Picture Show, to air in fall 2016, betting big that such events will be the ones that viewers want.

Meet the first ladies of the D.C.-suburb-set Real Housewives of Potomac (yes, you read that right—Potomac)
BY INGELA RATLEDGE

NEW YORK. BEVERLY HILLS. Potomac? Granted, the latest locale to get Bravo's Real Housewives treatment isn't exactly synonymous with glitz and glamour. But while this affluent community (the median income here is $178K) may lack brand-name sizzle, rest assured that its residents can go designer stiletto to designer stiletto with any of their counterparts in the drama department. Or at least this particular crew of highfalutin frenemies sure can. Manners-obsessed, politically dialed-in and, er, generous to a fault—philanthropy is practically treated like a competitive sport around these parts—the franchise's newly minted sextet handles its beefs in beautiful ball gowns. And there are plenty of those beefs to go around. "We keep it 'nice nasty' in Potomac," cast member Gizelle Bryant explains. "Everything is lovely and eloquent and said with a smile, so you don't realize that someone has stabbed you and you're bleeding until you get into the car to go home."

Here's a primer on the ladies who are about to put their town on the reality-TV map.

THE REAL HOUSEWIVES OF POTOMAC
Sundays, 9/8c, Bravo

CHARRISSE JORDAN

THE 411 The mom of two—she's been wed for 19 years to Eddie Jordan, head basketball coach at Rutgers University—rules the fundraising circuit. "I'm a leader," she says. "If I'm on a committee, then I have to be the chair!"

WATCH FOR In the premiere, Charrisse threw a seafood-themed shindig at her manse—and a hissy fit at Gizelle for a perceived breach of etiquette. Another source of conflict: her marriage, since Eddie spends most of his time working in New Jersey. "I'm pretty much a single mother," she says. "We struggle."
HOUSEWIFE SPIRIT ANIMAL? "Atlanta's Kandi Burruss. She's very emotional. That side of me comes out a lot."

ROBYN DIXON

THE 411 The PR manager and mom of two divorced former NBA player Juan Dixon in 2012. A couple of years later, he moved back in. "We're not technically a couple, but we function as a family," she says. "It's weird."

WATCH FOR High jinks with bestie Gizelle. Says Robyn, "We're two light-skinned black women with green eyes—it's like looking in a mirror, and we crack each other up." Not so amusing? All the pestering about her unconventional living sitch. "The other women are a bit nosy," she teases.
HOUSEWIFE SPIRIT ANIMAL? "New Jersey's Jacqueline Laurita. She doesn't create conflict, but if she's pushed, she addresses it. And she's got a silly side."

KAREN HUGER

THE 411 The married mom—she refers to her hubby, software exec Raymond Huger, as “the black Bill Gates”—is the self-appointed queen bee. “I’m the matriarch of the group, and I wear that proudly,” she says. “When I see unacceptable conduct, it’s my responsibility to correct it, and I do it well.”

WATCH FOR Some of Karen’s cohorts won’t be jazzed about her unsolicited pointers. “But at the end of the day, it has to be my way,” she says.

HOUSEWIFE SPIRIT ANIMAL? “Beverly Hills’ Lisa Vanderpump. She takes the high road, she’s a class act and she’s always teaching. So am I!”

GIZELLE BRYANT

THE 411 “I’m fun-loving, but I want what I want, no compromises,” says the cosmetics entrepreneur and divorced mother of three. (Her ex, pastor Jamal Bryant, was exposed in an adultery scandal.) “I speak my mind, and that might rub people the wrong way.”

WATCH FOR A clash of the divas between her and Karen. “We’re both big personalities,” Gizelle admits. But feuds aren’t the only thing keeping her busy. “You’ll see me dating—as in multiple people,” she says.

HOUSEWIFE SPIRIT ANIMAL? “Beverly Hills’ laid-back Kyle Richards, with a bit of Atlanta’s NeNe Leakes thrown in to tell it like it is.”

KATIE ROST

THE 411 “I’d hope that I come across as assertive but elegant,” says the model and divorced mom of three.

WATCH FOR Ups and downs with her banker beau of a year and a half, Andrew Martin. “We’re very in love. I think Jewish men are incredible to women and really spoil you,” says Katie, who converted to the religion with her mom at age 11. The catch: “He was a career bachelor when we met, so we’re negotiating what our commitment will be.”

HOUSEWIFE SPIRIT ANIMAL? “Beverly Hills’ Yolanda Foster. I identify with her as a model, and also as someone who has had struggles.”

ASHLEY DARBY

THE 411 “I’m the youngest, and I don’t necessarily fit in,” says Ashley, a former bartender and 2011 Miss D.C. (She moved to Potomac after marrying real estate tycoon Michael Darby, 29 years her senior.) “I’ve been compared to Tabasco sauce, and not everyone’s into spice.”

WATCH FOR Growing pains, especially when the aspiring restaurateur dares to defy Karen. “She was almost maternal with me until she realized I’d rather stay true to myself than conform,” Ashley says.

HOUSEWIFE SPIRIT ANIMAL? “Atlanta’s Phaedra Parks. With her, you don’t have to guess—girlfriend comes out and tells you!”

TO LIVE AND DIE IN

Josh Holloway and Sarah Wayne Callies fight to survive in USA's new thriller Colony

BY ROB MOYNIHAN

JOSH HOLLOWAY AND Sarah Wayne Callies know a thing or two about kicking ass on television's biggest genre shows. Holloway spent six seasons on ABC's Lost as cocky con man Sawyer, while Callies went toe-to-toe with zombies as Lori Grimes on the AMC juggernaut The Walking Dead. Now the actors have teamed with former Lost executive producer Carlton Cuse for USA's futuristic thriller Colony. They play Will and Katie Bowman, a married couple living under a totalitarian regime in an occupied Los Angeles. After being separated from their young son during the occupation, the Bowmans vow to do whatever it takes to bring their family back together. But when the government offers Will a job to spy against the growing resistance in exchange for information about his son's whereabouts, dangerous secrets are exposed that could threaten the core of their marriage.

What was it about Colony that appealed to you both and made you want to tackle yet another mystery-laden sci-fi series at this stage in your careers?

Callies: The story of the occupation is a great place to start. There's this cool theory—and I'm going to sound smart, so wait for it—from Jean-Paul Sartre. He theorized, after the occupation of Paris, that occupation is often more terrible than war. I was also really interested in exploring a woman who has been pushed so far that she looks around and goes, "I don't think I can live this way anymore." I just thought she was written with a balance of femininity and courage that I hadn't seen before.

Holloway: Ummm, what she said. That French guy, yeah! [Laughs] No, I was attracted right away because of the point I'm at in my own life. I have a family and two children. And Sarah's in a long-term relationship with two children. We met when we didn't have children. When we did a movie together [2007's Whisper], we were footloose and fancy-free. We'd go out drinking and s---t!

Callies: Do you remember what that was like?

Holloway: Uh, no.

Callies: I don't either.

Holloway: Now we understand the stakes involved when you bring kids into the world. This story centers around a family and their struggles to survive and stay together. The intricacies of marriage and parenting with this added pressure of the occupation brings everything to a head in your day-to-day decision making. This couple has true love, but they are also so damaged and they are forced to choose paths to resolve losing a son. Two people going toward the same goal in a completely different way. Marriage! [Laughs]

Callies: Did we mention it's a comedy? Ponies and rainbows with a live audience!

Holloway: Superlight stuff.

How would you describe the journey Will and Katie take to find their son and how that search affects their marriage?

Holloway: The first season represents infidelity without there being an affair. The wedges between them are from their own festering secrets from each other.

Callies: If you think about infidelity, it's not the sex that ends the marriage; it's the lies. These are two people who are trying to protect one another from what they're involved in not only because of the personal costs, but also because of the political and physical costs.

Josh, what is it like to work with Carlton Cuse again?

Holloway: It's like putting on your favorite old pair of blue jeans. They fit just right and you don't know where you're gonna go, but it's gonna be fun! We have a shorthand. We're friends. We share a lot of similar characteristics as men and what we believe [about] family, so it's very collaborative.

Can either of you compare aspects of this show to Lost or The Walking Dead?

Holloway: I see the similarities in the mystery and big storytelling. I'm confused, and that's exactly where I should be, because that means I'm with Carlton! [Laughs]

Callies: The Walking Dead is a story about anarchy and the complete breakdown of everything into its own little world of chaos. This is the opposite side of the coin. It's a hyper-organized, hyper-controlled state. Zombies are a lot of things, but they're not organized. They're not posting rules and setting curfews.

What sticks out to you about the aesthetic of Colony's futuristic Los Angeles with its surveillance drones and giant walls?

Holloway: That it's similar to the way it is now! We're shooting in all these pockets of culture where there is barbed wire around and people are on rations. And now we've got a possible dictator that people are interested in f---ing voting for! [Laughs]

Callies: God help me come November. But it's true, this world is so much closer to the one that we live in. Science fiction, when it's done well, can make this totally separate reality and link it back to the marrow of the bones of right now. Nestled inside the awesome special effects is a conversation about oppression and revolution. There is a layered conversation now in the global discourse about the difference between revolution and terrorism. Will and Katie are neck-deep in that philosophy.

Holloway: The story is just blowing up everywhere, so hold on to your bootstraps. There are all of these Easter eggs ready to be opened wide.

Callies: Stepped on and smushed. I just hope one of them is chocolate! [Laughs]

Leo Tolstoy's epic novel War and Peace springs to life in a sweeping, six-part miniseries

BY AUBRY D'ARMINIO

The Art Of WAR

EVERYONE KNOWS THREE things about 19th-century novelist Leo Tolstoy's War and Peace: It's Russian, it's old and it's long. The average English translation fills 1,440 pages. It has 365 chapters and a plot that follows five aristocratic families throughout 15 years of Napoleon's devastating (if doomed) attempt to conquer Eastern Europe and Moscow in the early 1800s. Which is why it's remarkable that—in an era of GIF-length attention spans drawn to galaxies far, far away—War and Peace remains undeniably popular. Its 2007 translation is still an Amazon bestseller. A recent New York Times survey revealed it to be one of the most read books by subway riders. In December, hundreds of Russian glitterati teamed up for a 60-hour marathon recitation of the text that was live-streamed worldwide. And now the BBC, with U.S. producers the Weinstein Company, has jumped on the horse and buggy with a lavish, six-hour adaptation that will air simultaneously on Lifetime, History and A&E over four weeks.

"The series is about love, hate, jealousy, forgiveness—all things we experience in any country, in any period," says British actor James Norton, who plays handsome Andrei Bolkonsky, the brooding soldier at the center of the epic. "Tolstoy wrote people and relationships so beautifully, we can always relate to them."

Golden Globe nominee Paul Dano (Love & Mercy) joins Norton as Pierre Bezukhov, a bighearted libertine whose faintly Cro-Magnon looks and progressive opinions are about as welcome among high society as a bug in soup—until he unexpectedly inherits a fortune. "Pierre's like the guy in high school who is dorky but kind of rad at the same time,” Dano says, “because he’s curious, passionate and not bound by what others say.”

Andrei, Pierre’s closest friend, is just the opposite: disillusioned and knotted with existential angst. Countess Natasha Rostova (Downton Abbey’s Lily James) is the plucky heroine who falls for both men—and Pierre’s slimy cousin, Anatole Kuragin (Callum Turner). “Natasha has a soaring spirit,” James says. “Everyone wants to be around her because, as Andrei says, ‘You seem to have the key to happiness.’ But that also means she has the key to grief and can sink to great depths. She lives in extremes.”

The rest of the star-studded cast includes Stephen Rea as Anatole’s scheming dad, Vassily; Oscar winner Jim Broadbent as Andrei’s cruel, demanding father, Nikolai;

Gillian Anderson as moneyed hostess and cunning matchmaker Anna Pavlovna; and Brian Cox as the beleaguered head of Russia’s army, General Kutuzov.

“It’s magical,” James gushes of the immense production. “The grandeur was like nothing I’d witnessed. I’d thought I’d seen it all on Downton, but I hadn’t.” The series employed over 100 cast members, 500 extras and 550 crew members. (It took 1,200 hours to edit.) The actors comprising the five main families alone required over 400 different costumes, 85 percent of which were hand-sewn. Thousands of other period getups were rented from across Europe, while 600 Russian and French military uniforms were re-created from scratch in Poland. The Hermitage Museum in St. Petersburg even allowed the art department to make copies of several of its prized

this page: Dano and James portraits to adorn the characters' estates—as long as the fakes were destroyed as soon as filming ended.

And that was the easy stuff. "In Britain, we take for granted that we have all these old, stately homes where we can film our period pieces," says the series' English director, Tom Harper. "But that's not true of Russia, where they've had two World Wars and a communist revolution. All the rich estates were seized and turned into institutions. That made finding locations really, really hard. Particularly because there are so many characters on the show, and they've all got about three houses each. We ended up filming in three different countries." The interiors of Latvia's baroque Rundāle Palace doubled for several Russian mansions. With a little pruning, the main street of Vilnius Old Town, Lithuania, became Tolstoy's Moscow, while nearby farmland was landscaped into a muddy battleground for the show's massive combat sequences, which featured full mounted armies.

"Riding across the battlefield with 300 extras in their greatcoats while brandishing a saber above your head and shouting 'Charge!' can be like heaven," Norton says. Not so divine? Doing so with a gigantic Russian army shako cap. "I had a hat issue," he admits with a laugh. "They just didn't stay on. When you jump up and down during a big brave moment and your flippin' hat falls off, it's the most unheroic, comedic thing that can happen."

On the other hand, it was still preferable to filming one of the many grand balls. "On the battlefield, you can get away with shouting and tripping," Norton says. "In the ballroom scenes, you had to do specifically timed pieces of laughing and dancing and music. It's so much pressure!" The ball where Natasha and Andrei fall in love—one of the novel's most celebrated moments—was shot at Catherine Palace (once a summer hideaway for Russian tsars) outside St. Petersburg. "We filmed in a room where balls like that would've really happened," James says. "It was covered in gold from floor to ceiling. We waltzed to a real Russian orchestra, and when the final note played, the reverb in the room seemed to go on for a lifetime. It made my hair stand on end."

Screenwriter Andrew Davies, the Welsh scribe responsible for TV versions of literary behemoths Middlemarch and Bleak House, reduced War and Peace to six hours by cutting out what he calls the "baggy" parts. Yet he's also the writer famous for having Colin Firth take a sexy mid-day swim wearing a white blouse in the 1995 adaptation of Pride and Prejudice (an event not in Jane Austen's original), so he naturally added some naughty bits to Tolstoy's story—like giving the incestuous relationship between Anatole and his sister (which some think is hinted at in the novel) the full bedside treatment—causing some grimaces in Britain, where the series is already airing.

Never fear, though: Andrei (who has been called the Russian Mr. Darcy) won't be entering any wet-blouse contests. Primarily, it was just too cold—he and Natasha do most of their frolicking through the Russian woods while knee-deep in snow. Norton recalls temperatures during the filming of those scenes dropping to negative-25 degrees. "We got an email warning of hypothermia and I'm a huge hypochondriac," James adds. "I was so nervous. I kept wiggling my toes so they wouldn't come off."

Altering the story too much wouldn't be right anyway. "While working in Russia, we saw how much the book meant to people," Norton says. "We went to a production of The Cherry Orchard, and the director, a Russian theater legend, wanted to meet the man playing Andrei. He asked me, in Russian, how old I was. When I told him [Norton is 31], he replied, 'No man under 40 has ever played Andrei because his circles of contemplation are so complex that no man should ever do it unless he is ready.' It was scary! Then he looked at me and said in English, 'Good luck.' There was a real sense he was saying, 'Don't mess it up!'"

BASKETS

THURSDAY, JAN. 21 Series premiere, 10/9c, FX

Excusez-moi, but if you were imagining that Zach Galifianakis's new show would be The Hangover: The TV Series, he has une surprise for you. In the dark comedy Baskets, the actor and comedian stars as Chip Baskets, a classically trained clown in the French tradition who—broke and seemingly left with no other options—must degrade his beloved craft by taking a job as a rodeo clown in Bakersfield, California.

Executive producer Jonathan Krisel says the series, which he created with Louis C.K. and its star, is more in line with Galifianakis's restrained acting work in the Oscar-winning Birdman than the trilogy that made him a household (albeit somewhat unspellable) name.

Krisel calls this turmoil-centric show “a slapstick drama.”

“He’s a guy trying to be a clown, and he’s not very good at it, but in his real life, his pants are falling down, things are crashing,” Krisel says. “If you are a clown, that’s a nightmare because it’s not fun to break things in the real world. It’s actually a tragedy.” —Gregory E. Miller

THE GRINDER

TUESDAY, JAN. 19 9:30/8:30c, Fox

THIS DEB IS no downer. As the matriarch of the Sanderson family on The Grinder, Mary Elizabeth Ellis (It's Always Sunny in Philadelphia) finds herself playing the voice of reason, whether it's dealing with her high-strung attorney husband, Stewart (Fred Savage), or her egotistical former actor brother-in-law, Dean (Rob Lowe). The actress gives us a little testimony on her role. —Rob Moynihan

In a show full of characters with over-the-top personalities, what did you think of Deb when you first read the script?

It spun me out a little bit. I'm used to being the person who comes in as a crazy ex-girlfriend and throws cinder blocks through a car windshield or is scream-crying while also laughing. I play crazy people a lot, so it's nice for me to be grounded.

What's it like having Fred as your TV husband?

He had directed a bunch of Sunny episodes, so I had a pretty good relationship with him and we felt comfortable to play around a lot. We just laugh at each other while we're acting, which is kind of terrible.

Have you discovered the secret to Rob's agelessness yet? I have bought every man in my life [Lowe's grooming product] Profile 4 Men just to make sure that if there's something in there that he has hidden, it will be given to everyone else. [Laughs] When we first started this show, I would just stare at him in wonder. But he is also so funny, sweet and has this little-boy thing about him.

Have you ever been on a cheesy procedural like The Grinder's show within a show? One of the first jobs I booked was an episode of Without a Trace. I was the poor girlfriend of the guy who ends up being the kidnapper, but I have a heart of gold and I try to save the little boy.

Do we ever get to see Deb in a Grinder flashback?

There may be a flashback where we go visit with Dean in Hollywood.

But will we hear Deb say, "Let's grind"? Maybe [laughs]...only in our dreams.

THURSDAY, JAN. 21 Series premiere, 10/9c, Bravo

MMM, IS THAT a red herring that we taste in the stew? On Bravo's new cooking competition Recipe for Deception, contestants won't just need an arsenal of culinary skills to cut the mustard—they'll also have to be stone-cold sociopaths. Hosted by stand-up comedian and food writer Max Silvestri, the series, loosely based on the parlor game Two Truths and a Lie, challenges chefs to create a winning dish featuring a mystery ingredient. To home in on what that is, they'll swap clues with their opponents while trying to intentionally mislead each other along the way. Silvestri dishes about bringing Pinocchio into the pantry. —Ingela Ratledge

With so many kitchen showdowns out there, what will make this one stand out?

Our show takes food very seriously, but it has a sense of humor. It does not treat food competition as a sacred and solemn temple to worship at. You can tune in and laugh.

People like to watch chefs struggle and sweat, and we turn that up to 15.

How do the contestants fare at the deception? I was expecting chefs to not be good liars. I don't know why, but I thought they would all be breaking into smiles, and there were maybe only two like that. I'm a little unsettled by how adept some of them were—not just at lying, but at all sorts of crazy misdirections, mind games and manipulation. I didn't tell them to do that! On an upcoming episode, celebrities will play for charity. Any major rivalries in the mix? Coolio and Lou Diamond Phillips. This is their third time cooking against each other on TV, and it was score settling at a cosmic level. I figured it would be lighthearted, but they were more cutthroat than anybody. I was like, "OK, you realize you are professionals at something else, right?" Also, you may think there's only one way to wear an apron—and Coolio will show you otherwise.

Whittle and Avgeropoulos

THE 100

THURSDAY, JAN. 21 Season premiere, 9/8c, The CW

SEASON 3 OF The CW's epic dystopian drama The 100 is here, and according to executive producer Jason Rothenberg, the survivors of the Ark spaceship who came down to Earth hoping to settle in a peaceful land are about to have their brave new world rocked yet again. Here are five things to expect for the series' return. —Damian Holbrook

1. After the battle and massacre at Mount Weather that ended Season 2, the survivors' young leader, Clarke (Eliza Taylor), is not doing well. Distraught over her role in the deadly events, Clarke has gone underground. And slightly feral. "We find her three months later and she's had to survive out [in the world] by herself," says Rothenberg, who adds that the legend of "Clarke of the Sky People" has spread to other earthbound clans who may want to extinguish the mythical killer.

2. It's finally revealed what caused the nuclear Armageddon that sent Earth's residents up to the Ark in the first place.

Look for A.L.I.E. (Erica Cerra), the artificial-intelligence hottie that former Ark chancellor Jaha (Isaiah Washington) met in the season finale, to factor heavily into that origin storyline.

3. Love may not keep fan-fave couple Linctavia together.

Even though former Grounder warrior Lincoln (Ricky Whittle) has definitively aligned himself with the Ark survivors, Octavia (Marie Avgeropoulos) "is becoming more and more of a Grounder," Rothenberg says. And that's going to cause big problems for them.

4. Pop star Shawn Mendes croons in the premiere. The "Stitches" singer tweeted his love for the show to Rothenberg, who worked him into a scene that also introduces the Sky people's new bar-slash-garage hangout. They'll have time to hang out?

5. More survivors are coming. Rothenberg reveals they arrive "fairly early in the season" and that their hellacious experiences on the ground "will make those of our heroes look easy." Yikes!

DIVORCE. MULTIPLE BANKRUPTCIES. A life-endangering health crisis. Sounds like another over-the-top Lifetime movie—only all of the drama in this tale happens to be true. Toni Braxton: Unbreak My Heart, based on the 2014 memoir of the same name, offers a diva's-eye view of the platinum-selling artist's personal and professional struggles. Braxton, who serves as executive producer, sings like a canary about the experience. —Ingela Ratledge

Even on Braxton Family Values, your reality series on WEtv, you've stayed pretty reserved. Why open up now? I tend to be aloof, so there's a lot people don't know. I just wanted to tell my story, because others have been doing it for years.

Any misconceptions that you're especially eager to clear up? Probably what happened with my first bankruptcy. Or both bankruptcies, if I'm honest—my money problems have such big claws. We have a court scene that is powerful and will explain a lot.

How hands-on were you in the production?

I was involved in hair, makeup, everything—except picking who would play me, because I couldn't be objective. The young lady [Lex Scott Davis] they chose is great. It's surreal. She holds her head like me, and she fit into all of my outfits—we use my real clothes!

What were the toughest topics to cover?

Oh, there were a couple. There was the moment I found out my 3-year-old son [Diezel, currently 12] had autism. And my marriage [to now ex-husband Keri Lewis].

In 2010, you went public about suffering from lupus. How will it be addressed? People will see what I went through. I remember feeling like I was going to die. It's been tough.

The title is borrowed from your biggest hit. What does Unbreak My Heart mean to you? I love making a living at music. But I never knew that this whole journey would break my heart as severely as it did. Now, I'm asking permission to unbreak it. And yes, I know that sounds really corny!

MAD DOGS

FRIDAY, JAN. 22 Series premiere, Amazon Prime Video

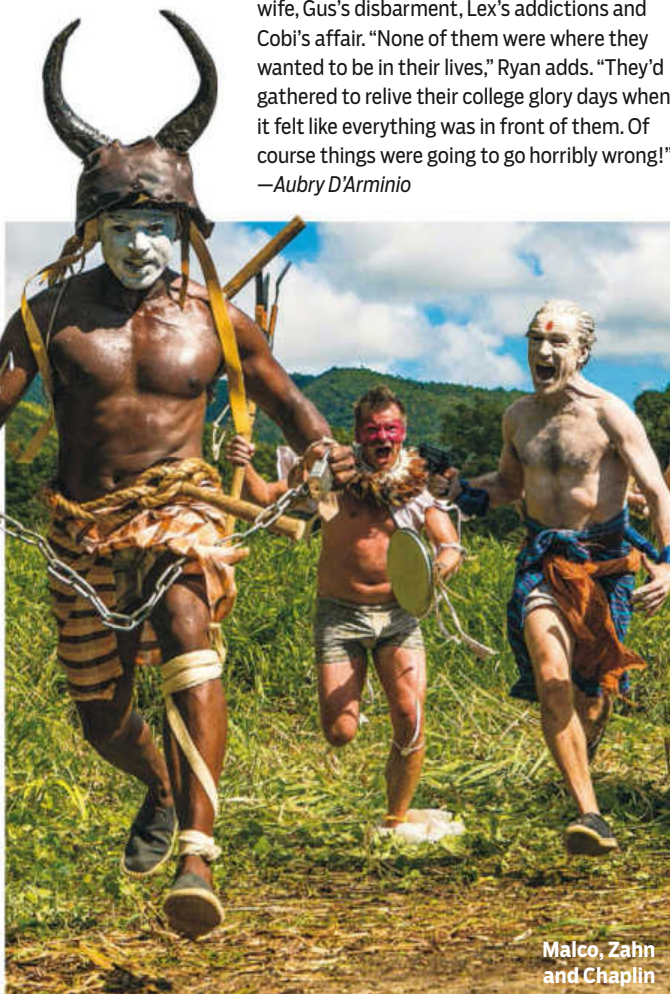

Unless you're a bunch of monks, any guys-only vacation to the steamy paradise of Belize promises to get rowdy. But when that trip celebrates the retirement of your rich college bestie (Billy Zane), who turns out to be in the Central American drug trade and is murdered right in front of you by a little person in a cat mask with ties to the local police—well, you might just be up the Caribbean without a paddle.

Such is the fate of Joel (Ben Chaplin), Lex (Michael Imperioli), Gus (Romany Malco) and Cobi (Steve Zahn) in Amazon's new black-comedy-thriller-mystery-action series Mad Dogs. "Cris Cole, who created the British series the show is based on, sums it up as a 'farce noir,' which is a great descriptor," executive producer Shawn Ryan (The Shield) says. "It's a farce noir about the uselessness of the middle-aged American male."

But is that uselessness in terms of getting out of their crazy predicament or uselessness in general? The answer: both. "These guys aren't cool-headed superheroes with clever tactics. They bumble," Ryan says. "They're the opposite of Liam Neeson in Taken. They don't have a unique set of skills." And as the stakes get higher, tensions between the quartet reveal their buried secrets—like Joel's estrangement from his kids and obsession with Cobi's wife, Gus's disbarment, Lex's addictions and Cobi's affair. "None of them were where they wanted to be in their lives," Ryan adds. "They'd gathered to relive their college glory days when it felt like everything was in front of them. Of course things were going to go horribly wrong!"

WHAT'S WORTH WATCHING

JAN. 25-31

EDITORS' PICK

LUCIFER

MONDAY, JAN. 25 Series premiere, 9/8c, Fox

THE DEVIL'S GOING down to SoCal for one hell of a good time. In this new drama, Tom Ellis (Rush) stars as the titular lord of Hell who moves to Los Angeles to start anew as a club proprietor. —Rob Moynihan

How are you putting a new spin on the devil? We're taking the epitome of evil and putting him in a redemption story. But underlying all of this is Lucifer being rejected by his dad. He bears that chip on his shoulder massively.

Lucifer partners with an LAPD detective (Lauren German). Any romance?

Coming from a successful TV show in the U.K. (Miranda) about whether two people got together, we realized if they ever did, that would be the end of the show. They help each other in a very roundabout way.

Since Lucifer lives a life of opulence, what is your favorite toy on set? He has a very formidable Scotch collection. Fortunately, it's not real or I'd have no liver by the end of Season 1!

RECOVERY ROAD

MONDAY, JAN. 25 Series premiere, 9/8c, Freeform

SOBER DOESN'T MEAN somber in Recovery Road, an engaging new drama based on Blake Nelson's young-adult novel about a troubled teen coming to grips with her substance-abuse problem. "It was very important to us that the show didn't feel like an afterschool special," says executive producer Bert V. Royal, who previously nailed youth gone wild in his script for the Emma Stone comedy Easy A. "One of the things we know about the addiction community is that recovery can bring out a dark sense of humor in people when they get some clarity and finally see the mistakes they've made. So we wanted to capture that newfound sense of humor that people in sobriety can have."

But first, addicts must hit bottom, and that's where we find Maddie Graham (Jessica Sula, above right) as the series opens. A boozy party girl prone to blackouts and bald-faced lies, Maddie is ordered into a sober-living facility after being confronted by her mom (Sharon Leal) and high school counselor (Alexis Carra). None too pleased with the arrangement at first, Maddie will begin to "learn something new about herself and her struggles when she meets people [in the house] with similar issues," executive producer Karen DiConcetto says.

And while there is fun to be had within the house—other residents include a spirited meth head (Kyla Pratt) and a flamboyant alcoholic (Daniel Franzese)—all of the horror of addiction's grim consequences looms large. "I don't think there is anyone in the world who can say they haven't been touched in some way by addiction, be it a friend, a family member or themselves, so we couldn't do a light, PG-rated version of it," Royal says. "And to the network's credit, they have been fantastic about letting us push [boundaries] and encouraging us to [go] further." —Damian Holbrook

MONDAY JAN. 25 The Fosters

Midseason premiere

8/7c, Freeform Callie (Maia Mitchell) has been adopted, so she needs to get over her feelings for new brother Brandon (David Lambert). Her energy is now focused on her "Fost and Found" site. Much better than going down the Game of Thrones sibling path.

Jane the Virgin

Guest star alert!

9/8c, The CW Rogelio's mother, Liliana (Rita Moreno), is back for more—and she comes bearing a gift. Well, not so much a gift, but a major family bombshell. Close enough.

TUESDAY JAN. 26 Hollywood Game

Night 8/7c, NBC It's a battle of the sexes on the Jane Lynch–hosted celebrity game show! Geena Davis, Kate Walsh and The Office's Angela Kinsey duke it out with Adam Goldberg, Michael Ealy and Superstore's Ben Feldman.

Pretty Little Liars

8/7c, Freeform Although the Radley asylum has turned into a chic hotel over the five-year time jump, we're fairly sure that isn't near enough time to sweep away all the secrets lurking in that basement.

Junk Food Flip 9/8c,

Cooking Channel Taking on the 1,400-calorie deep-fried Spam musubi (a popular Hawaiian dish similar to sushi), hosts Nikki Dinki and Bobby Deen turn the tinned-meat treat into the 410-calorie "Wham Bam Thank You Spam." But will they be thanked?

WEDNESDAY, JAN. 27

Nature 8/7c, PBS (check local listings at pbs.org) Meet the animal kingdom's most deceitful maters, like male marsh harriers that disguise themselves as females and red kangaroos that invite you over to Netflix and chill.

Rev Run's Sunday Suppers

Season premiere

10/9c, Cooking Channel Rev's wife, Justine, creates a traditional English high tea complete with cucumber and herb butter finger sandwiches. But when Rev wants something heartier, he cooks up a Parmesan meatball slider—you know, classic British fare.

Wild Things With Dominic Monaghan

Season premiere

10/9c, Travel Channel The nature-obsessed actor treks to Mozambique in search of a whale shark—the world's biggest fish, weighing in at 42 tons. Great, now just find us a meaning for that Lost finale.

THURSDAY, JAN. 28

You, Me and the Apocalypse

Series premiere

8/7c, NBC When a comet is set to collide with Earth, chaos ensues for a strange assortment of characters, including a potty-mouthed priest (Rob Lowe) and a timid librarian (The Office's Jenna Fischer).

Redneck Island: Battle at the Lake

Season premiere

10/9c, CMT Dancing With the Stars vet Melissa Rycroft takes over cohosting duties for a season that pits 12 new contestants against 12 returning fan faves. The amount of beer consumed will stay the same.

SCENE STEALER

YOUNGER'S MIRIAM SHOR

WEDNESDAY, JAN. 27 10/9c, TV Land

SHE PLAYS Diana Trout—aka Trout Pout—the monstrous, wildly insecure publishing exec on TV Land's battle-of-the-generations comedy Younger. Cross her at your peril. "Diana is a woman in power who is completely unapologetic about her ability and ambition," says Shor. "Women like that are quickly and unfairly labeled a bitch these days—only in Diana's case, it's totally warranted. She's intolerable."

WHERE YOU'VE SEEN HER Shor has starred in numerous flop series, including Then Came You, Inside Schwartz and Big Day. She was prissy hausfrau Janet on the steamy disco-era sudser Swingtown and Cricket, the hypersexed fashion mogul with a gay hubby on Southern satire GCB. "Younger is my first show to make it to a second season," Shor says. "Apparently, I am no longer the kiss of death!"

WHY WE LOVE HER They don't come funnier or more dangerous. "Miriam is always ruining takes because the cast and crew break up with laughter," says creator Darren Star. "She can steal a scene with the raise of an eyebrow." Which she does often. "Diana is always horrified, like when one of the young editors pitches a book about b--- jobs," says Shor. "She's like, 'People, we publish literature here!' I love that about her. Diana is an old-school gal trying to survive in a world of silly millennials."

HAIRY SITUATION Shor got her showbiz break wearing a beard and mustache as Yitzhak, husband of Hedwig, in the original off-Broadway production of Hedwig and the Angry Inch, then repeated the role in the 2001 film version. Now nothing fazes her. "I never worry about looks," Shor says. "You hear people say, 'Oooh, such-and-such an actress is sooo brave. She gained 30 pounds for her role! She didn't shower! She went without makeup! Hey, if that's brave, then I'm brave every day.'" —Michael Logan

SUITS

WEDNESDAY, JAN. 27 Midseason premiere, 10/9c, USA

Now that Mike Ross (Patrick J. Adams) has been nabbed by the Feds for being a fraud, our favorite fake lawyer could be going from suits to orange jumpsuits. “We felt it was time,” explains executive producer Aaron Korsh of the midseason finale’s jaw-dropper, which saw Pearson Specter Litt’s resident phony being led away in handcuffs. “It’s been building this whole time,” continues Korsh, adding that the plan to put Mike’s secret on blast was hatched at the beginning of last year. “The man was destined to be caught.”

The second half of Season 5 will focus on the fallout—the effect his arrest has on fiancée Rachel (Meghan Markle) and just how mentor Harvey (Gabriel Macht) and the company plan to get the guy off while also dodging the manipulations of ruthless government prosecutor Anita Gibbs (Leslie Hope). “They are going to fight [the charges] and Gibbs is gonna come after Mike in various ways,” Korsh says. “There will be ramifications for all six main characters because they were all in on the secret.”

Of course, one of them is far more complicit in the deception than the rest, and in tonight’s episode, it becomes clear who Gibbs’s gripe is really with. “Anita doesn’t want Mike. She wants Harvey,” Korsh reveals. “Her tactics will be to go after various people to get them to turn on him, and that will put pressure on everyone.” Especially whichever person it was who snitched on Mike in the first place.

—Damian Holbrook

OUTSIDERS

TUESDAY, JAN. 26 Series premiere, 9/8c, WGN America

“On their mountain, it’s their rules,” notes the tagline to this new drama from executive producer Paul Giamatti—which just about sums up the family of rugged outliers living off the grid in Appalachia. Led by their daddy, Big Foster (David Morse, center), this tribe does not react kindly to the suits making a play for their coal-rich land.

FRIDAY, JAN. 29

A sudden stomach illness has messy consequences for Robert when future Prime Minister Neville Chamberlain comes to dinner.

Stevenson

BLACK SAILS

SATURDAY, JAN. 30 9/8c, Starz

The fiercest brigand in seafaring lore has arrived in Nassau as pirate adventure Black Sails—with its well-honed mix of real and fictional characters—begins its third year. Joining the cast is hirsute giant Edward Teach (Ray Stevenson), aka Blackbeard, who has returned to Nassau, the pirate haven he helped found, to reunite with his onetime disciple Charles Vane (Zach McGowan). “Friction grew when Vane’s woman, Eleanor Guthrie [Hannah New], convinced him to go against Teach,” says Stevenson, best known for his roles as a plebeian soldier in Rome and a gay Ukrainian mobster in Dexter.

“It’s a losing battle to tell this story without Blackbeard in it,” says executive producer Jonathan Steinberg. “It felt right to finally introduce this powerful character in terms of his father-son relationship with someone who is important to fans.”

Having heard that his female nemesis was on trial in London, Blackbeard wants Vane to help him reclaim Nassau from “the soft and prosperous society it’s become” and bring it back to a paradise “for real pirates, men of adventure and bounty,” Stevenson says.

It’s not just Blackbeard causing trouble on the island. Current pirate boss Jack Rackham (Toby Schmitz) has to figure out how to keep their huge store of looted Spanish gold from an impending invasion by the British Navy. On the high seas, a vengeful Capt. James Flint (Toby Stephens) and his crew face a perilous trip back to the isle. Flint must desperately try to outrun pirate catchers and a killer storm.

Though it would make sense for Flint and Blackbeard to unite against the Royal Navy, don’t expect them to happily fly the skull-and-bones together. “There will be a head-to-head between them,” Stevenson promises. “It’s going to be fun.” —Ileane Rudolph

Siff and Lewis

BILLIONS

SUNDAY, JAN. 31 10/9c, Showtime

MAGGIE SIFF IS plenty schooled in playing women immersed in high-testo worlds. To wit: Mad Men's Rachel Menken, one of Don Draper's many girlfriends, and Dr. Tara Knowles, biker Jax's "old lady" in Sons of Anarchy. In Billions, Siff is psychiatrist Wendy Rhoades, caught in a high-stakes war between her husband, U.S. Attorney Chuck Rhoades (Paul Giamatti), and her employer, hedge-fund honcho Bobby "Axe" Axelrod (Damian Lewis). Siff shares her take on being the ultimate mediator of machismo. —IR

The show's opening scene showed Chuck being humiliated by Wendy in full dominatrix gear. What's that about? They have a deep, complicated relationship. [Laughs] Chuck carries around shame rooted in his relationship with his powerful father [Jeffrey DeMunn]. Also, he makes or breaks people's lives every day. He's under an incredible amount of pressure, and this is an outlet. What gives Dr. Rhoades a rush? She gets off on the alpha nature of the place. She's not morally pure, but a good person who sneaks in humanity when she can. She knows their weaknesses. Will she use that power? She may not know all the criminality around Axe Capital, but Wendy has a huge emotional edge over them and could use it for good or evil. What does the show tell us about this financial world? One of the intriguing elements to me is just how much power and influence Axelrod wields by virtue of how much money he has. But it's ever-shifting who the villain is here. Memorably on SoA, Tara was forked to death by her biker moll mother-in-law (Katey Sagal). How dangerous is this cutthroat financial world? I was relieved to tell my parents that I didn't think I'd be getting killed in some brutal way. There's violence and volatility and passionate people; they're just not yielding guns...yet.

UPDATE

THE 5 HOTTEST ANTI-AGING SECRETS FOR SPRING

Growth Hormone: The Long-Awaited “Fountain of Youth”?

They can't stop talking about human growth hormone (hGH). It's been featured on The Doctors, The Today Show, Good Morning America, Fox News, and CNN. Allure magazine, in its “Anti-aging Special” issue, highlighted growth hormone as its year-end callout. Shape magazine began a recent growth hormone article with the provocative lead-in: “When you see a 50-year-old actress who can pass for 35, you can bet that good genes aren't the only things responsible for her youthful glow.” But when the United States Patent Office began issuing U.S. Patents* to protect an oral compound capable of boosting the body's own production of growth hormone to more youthful levels, the hGH revolution finally went mainstream.

The compound is being sold under the trade name SeroVital®-hgh, and it's quickly gaining an almost “cult-like” following because, let's face it... something that may have the power to reduce wrinkles, tighten saggy skin, decrease body fat, increase lean muscle mass, boost energy, rev up sex drive, and make you look and feel decades — not years, but DECADES — younger is, at the very least, irresistible... especially when it's protected by not one but eleven U.S. Patents.† But is there a catch? Find out all the details at SeroVital.com. Can't wait to try it yourself? It's currently available at all Ulta stores, Kohl's, select GNC locations, and direct from the manufacturer at 1-800-570-5468 or SeroVital.com. Use promo code HGH351 for free shipping.‡

The European Wrinkle Pill!

The one compound cosmetic companies don't want you to know about

Have you ever noticed how topical cosmetic skin creams always talk about improving the "appearance" of the skin or "visibly" reducing wrinkles? They all contain wussy "appearance" qualifiers, because none of them will claim they change the skin's structure (not even Estée Lauder or La Mer with its $300 wrinkle cream, just to mention two). That's why a revolutionary new "anti-wrinkle" compound is causing such a stir. This oral compound has the power to make your skin younger. Not younger looking... actually younger. We're talking about rebuilding your skin, making it thicker and more dense (think less likely to wrinkle and sag), even decreasing wrinkles... not merely the "look" of wrinkles, but literally decreasing their depth, thereby actually smoothing the skin as it improves the underlying cellular matrix. There's not a single cosmetic moisturizer, serum, or cream out there that will make those kinds of claims. And because UniLastin works systemically (throughout the entire body), it's able to improve the skin everywhere, from the face, neck, and décolleté to crepey arms, loose abdominal skin... even buttock sag and elbow wrinkles. It's sort of like a facelift for your whole body... from the end of your nose to the tips of your toes! This unique, total body, anti-wrinkle complex is called UniLastin™, and it's available exclusively at UniLastin.com or by calling 1-800-801-9859 (promo code AGEPILL26 gives you free shipping!). About $79.

Can't Sleep? It might be Stress-Related Sleep Disorder™ (SRSD)

On any given evening, more than 100 million Americans have a hard time getting a good night's sleep. And almost half of those people can't fall asleep or stay asleep because of stress and something we call Stress-Related Sleep Disorder (SRSD).

What's worse, when you don't get enough sleep you become more stressed, and a vicious cycle begins. Ultimately, the results can be the classic signs of getting older: fatigue, lack of focus, irritability, poor memory, and moodiness.

Unfortunately, many of us are taking the wrong kind of sleeping pill... one that does little or nothing to combat SRSD but can leave you feeling "hungover" in the morning. But all that's changing thanks to Relacore Deep Sleep. It's the first and only sleep aid specifically developed to break the sleep-stress cycle and address SRSD... and it's helping Americans fall asleep quickly and wake up rested and ready to take on your day. If you're ready to finally get some sleep, contact Carter-Reed at 1-800-241-0947 or online at www.RelacoreSleep.com. Use promo code SLEEP24 and get free shipping.*

NEW Probiotic • Weight Loss TruBioTrim Energy Enhanced Probiotic Fat Burning Formula

What does adding a few pounds have to do with aging? Everything! Those additional pounds of figure-destroying fat can make you look 10 years older... or more. Here's a smart solution. It's called TruBioTrim™... the all-new energy-enhanced, probiotic fat-burning formula everyone is talking about.

TruBioTrim will help you lose weight so you look thinner, tighter, and younger, but TruBioTrim also helps reduce belly bloat, increase metabolic rate, burn fat, provide digestive support... and give you all the youthful energy you need to get through the day.

The bad news... TruBioTrim will not be available in stores until March 15, 2016 (when it gets there, reach for the bright green box, and do not accept substitutes or look-alikes). Till then, you can order online at TruBioTrim.com or by calling 1-800-418-4661. A full 30-day supply is only $59 (use promo code TRU17 and shipping is free!).

Serious Dark Spots? [don't try to hide them] FIX THEM!

Nothing screams your "real" age louder than those telltale age spots. Bremenn Clinical (a company that's spent years researching pigment-correcting formulations like the world-famous "Serious Dark Circles" cream, Hylexin®) has the solution. It's called, what else, Bremenn Clinical's Dark Spot Eraser.™ Dark Spot Eraser contains a powerful combination of super-effective skin lighteners and pigmentation modifiers that not only helps reduce the appearance of existing dark spots, but also addresses the appearance of future spot emergence, making it the ultimate solution for even the most serious dark spots. So don't try to hide those serious dark spots... fix them with Bremenn's Dark Spot Eraser. Available at Kohl's and smarter retailers nationwide, or directly from Bremenn Clinical at 1-800-220-1931 or BremennClinical.com. Use promo code DARKSPOT90 and get free shipping.*

Exquisite Detail

The historic 2016 $100 Silver Proof is an exquisite adaptation of the United States Treasury's recently redesigned $100 Federal Reserve Note—only the third new $100 bill design in 100 years. It is a true artistic masterpiece that will always be treasured.

99.9% Silver

Best of all, this stunning Silver Proof is even more beautiful than the original, because it's struck in precious silver!

It is a landmark in proof minting, combining unprecedented weight with extraordinary dimension. The specifications for this colossal medallion proof are unparalleled. Each one:

- Is Individually Struck from Pure 99.9% Silver.
- Weighs one Troy ounce.
- Has a Surface Area That Exceeds 15 Square Inches.
- Contains 31.10 Grams (480 Grains) of Pure Silver.
- Is Individually Registered and Comes With a Numbered Certificate of Authenticity.
- Is Fully Encapsulated to Protect Its Mirror-Finish.
- Includes a Deluxe Presentation Case.

Advance Strike Discount

The price for the 2016 $100 Silver Proof will be set at $129 per proof.

However, if you place your order now, you can acquire this giant silver proof at the special advance strike discount price—only $99.

NOTE TO COLLECTORS: When you place your order for the $100 silver proof, it will be processed immediately, and the earliest orders will receive the coveted lowest registration numbers.

Additional Discounts

Substantial additional discounts are available for serious collectors who wish to acquire more than one of these exquisite silver proofs.

SUDOKU

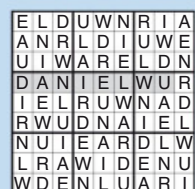

The goal of Sudoku is to fill in every empty box with one of nine letters. Each letter can appear only once in each horizontal row, as well as in every vertical column and in each of the 3x3 grids. Each finished puzzle will contain the spelling of a TV star, character, setting or show. Last issue's puzzle, about the star of AMC's Into the Badlands, contained the letters A D E I L N R U and W. The finished grid spelled out Daniel Wu.

The creator of Law & Order appears in this issue's puzzle at left. It has the letters C D F I K L O R and W.

CHEERS & JEERS

BY DAMIAN HOLBROOK @damianholbrook

CHEERS TO MAKING A MURDERER

for putting the "guilty" in guilty pleasure. Netflix's 10-part documentary series about the corruption and courtroom shenanigans surrounding accused killer Steven Avery's 2007 trial is an addictive, infuriating and exemplary case of true crime being so much stranger than fiction.

CHEERS TO DOWNTON ABBEY

for beginning the end in first class. The Brit hit kicked off its final season with Lady Mary being blackmailed, the Dowager delivering one of her best burns and fans frothing to see how it will all wrap up for the residents of our favorite country estate.

CHEERS TO SPY DRAMA LEGENDS

for giving us a series finale that fit its slow-burn style. "This story developed with each episode that aired.... It wasn't fast-moving or action-filled, but it was good drama and [had] intricate writing. And I love Sean Bean!" —Valerie E. Johnson

JEERS TO THE BACHELOR'S MESSY MISSES

Between drunken mean girl Lace, flower-powered weirdo Mandi, the tiny-horse hopeful and the chick who loves chickens, we wouldn't blame poor Ben Higgins (above, with Lace) if he stepped away from the roses and ran for his life.

JEERS TO A GAME DELAY

Now that Game of Thrones author George R.R. Martin has confirmed that Season 6 of HBO's crown jewel will air before his next novel hits shelves, we're starting to wonder if winter—or the damn book—is ever coming.

JEERS TO THE CURTAIN COMING DOWN ON YAHOO SCREEN

After its failed effort to keep Community (with Joel McHale, left, and Jim Rash) alive, the high cost of low ratings led the website to unplug its video-streaming wing and eat 42 million bucks in the process. That is a lot of green, Greendale.

JEERS TO AMERICAN IDOL

for getting stuck in our heads again. Just when we thought we were out, Fox pulled us back in by launching the final season with a killer Kanye cameo, past champ appearances and enough actual talent to remind us why this show owned us for so long.
